

Welcome to The Rundown, a free daily email delivering more fun in less time.

March 8, 2011

Angels and Shamrocks

Angel City Brewing opens downtown in time for St. Patty's Day

Morning Buzz

>>Worth Watching

Ghostly Girl Gag
It's amazing how terrifying a little girl in a dark hallway can be.

For all its debauchery, a proper St. Patrick's Day is about planning.

You pick out a proper green polo. A designated driver. And a blackout destination.

This year, there's no need to settle for another overstuffed Irish pub.

You've got 27,000 square feet of drinking space and sunshine at Angel City Brewing.

Moving their operations from Torrance's Alpine Village to Downtown LA (say hello to an easier Oktoberfest), the award-winning microbrewery opens their massive new complex on St. Patty's Day.

And in the meantime, while the interior's getting the finishing touches, they've set up an open-air beer garden across the street. This weekend (Friday-Sunday), sample everything the brewery has to offer outdoors.

Located in the historic John A. Roebling building, smack in the middle of the Arts District, the brewery will sport a tasting area where you can kick back with 13 Angel City beers (plus other craft beers and wines not brewed on site).

An ever-changing roster of gourmet trucks provide the grub. And while you're sipping your Rahsaan Roland Kirk Stritch Stout or Belgian Night Train, you'll be able to check out live music and art showings.

Saint Patrick, Angel City. Must be divine intervention.

Sponsored

CHOW's stomachs-of-steel editors are eating their way through Austin, Oakland and Portland and documenting the whole thing. CHOW Tour: Handmade is focused on artisanal food from cities rockin grass-roots attitudes and creative ways with high-quality food (even if it's a Frito pie). Join CHOW for the ultimate taste trip.

Angel City Brewing

Opens Thursday, March 17

216 S. Alameda St., Downtown (213) 622-1261

angelcitybrewing.com

Beer garden preview: Open this Friday-Sunday (Fri 5p-1a; Sat-Sun 12p-1a)

Nearby: Church & State; Wurstkuche; Villains Tavern

The Rundown is clean editorial. There is no Pay for Play.